

Barbara Reardon / Artist

Biography

Barbara was accepted to and attended the Rhode Island School of Design, or RISD for two years during the mid-sixties before becoming a mom. Her painting professors at RISD were Richard Merkin and Dean Richardson. She was graded as an "A" student, unusual for the time.

After many years exploring jewelry design and clothing design for her own shops, she is now devoting full-time to her first love: painting.

Barbara has been painting in Hatteras Island Studio for 10 years. She has exhibited her work at art shows on Hatteras Island and in her Avon Gallery Coffeehouse. She recently sold her business so that she can devote full time to her paintings of Hatteras Island.
