Diane Luke Barth received her Bachelor of Arts from SUNY Geneseo and attended graduate school at The Rochester Institute of Technology in NY. She enjoys nature and animals (such a variety is found on The Outer Banks). She resides on an island in Kill Devil Hills, NC. Drawing horses is her specialty. She used to compete with her quarter horse 'Sassy' in trail and pleasure class, along with barrel racing. Diane loves to combine the horse with other nature subject matter. The combination adds excitement to her paintings. She is working on a series of art that features equine and birds of prey. Her work is featured on blankets, pillows, and clothing sold by Woolrich, Inc. It also appears commercially on coffee mugs, stationery, and a variety of gift products sold by other companies.